
About the Authors...

Kathleen Holmes is Associate Director of the Texas Center for Educational Technology at the University of North Texas. Since 1972 she has worked in K - 12 education serving as a teacher, principal, program director and also has served as a university faculty member in teacher training programs. Dr. Holmes also consults with corporations and school districts on strategic planning, leadership, and curriculum design. She holds an Ed.D. in Curriculum and Instruction from the University of North Texas.

Dr. Kathleen M. Holmes
Texas Center for Educational Technology
P.O. 13857
University of North Texas
Denton, Texas 76203
PH: 817-565-4732 FAX: 817-565-4425
TENET: kholmes@tenet.edu

Delia Duffey is a Program Director in the Technology Services Division at the Texas Education Agency. She serves as Agency liaison to the Texas Center for Educational Technology. Previously she was responsible for directing educational technology at the elementary level for the state of Texas. She is a former social studies teacher, campus administrator, and district technology coordinator and has served as a faculty member in teacher education programs. She holds an Ed.D in Educational Technology from Texas A&M University.

Dr. Delia Duffey
The Texas Education Agency
Technology Services Division
1701 North Congress
Austin, Texas 78701
PH: 512-463-9092 FAX: 512-463-9090
TENET: dduffey@tenet.edu

This publication and all products produced by the Texas Center for Educational Technology are a direct result of a partnership between Texas school districts, Educational Service Centers, and private sector partners.

Technology Staff Development:

Designing an Effective Process

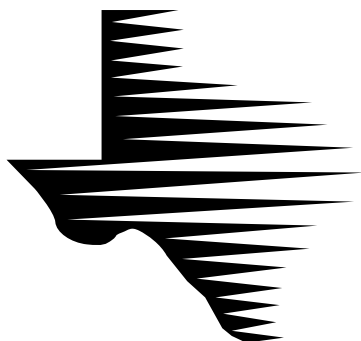

Authors:

Kathleen M. Holmes
Texas Center for Educational Technology

Delia Duffey
The Texas Education Agency

Table of Contents

Introduction	1
1. People and Change.....	3
2. Leading the Change Process: The Technology Facilitator.....	13
3. Change: The Process.....	17
4. Evaluating Technology Staff Development: Did It Work?.....	31
5. Appendix	36

tcet

Texas Center for Educational Technology